Modular Home Builder
Clover Hill Manufacturing Acquires New Location

A concept in housing developed a scant 20 months ago has grown and developed and now, like a growing family, has found a new and bigger home.

Clover Hill Manufacturing Company moved this week to a new location on Route 460 at the intersection of Road 613 (State Police Tower Road). The new building is 200 feet by 100 feet, large enough to construct five houses at a time, all under cover for speed in construction no matter what the weather outside.

Each house begins as half of a 23 x 40 foot frame or brick home. Hardwood flooring is placed on foundation wood and each side of the house is put up section by section. The sections are pre-built in another part of the large Clover Hill building.

Basic construction foreman James Royal explains that outside walls are lettered and inside partitions numbered. Workmen begin with side "A" and use up all the alphabet to "Q" before a house is complete.

Each half of a house rolls on super-strong casters down the gigantic workroom in assembly-line fashion until, when complete, the half-house is rolled out a side door to a waiting truck. Electrical appliances, heating system and light fixtures are all included.

Both halves are taken to a home site and placed on a basement or ground foundation with a hydraulic lift designed by Leon Paulette, of Evergreen, who originated the concept of modular home building in this area. Joining of the two halves of a house and final finishing work is usually completed in two or three days and a family can move in. A Clover Hill home was constructed in just one day recently in Fluvanna county and witnessed by men of state and national building agencies. (See Times-Virginian of Nov. 18.) Television covered the event, also.

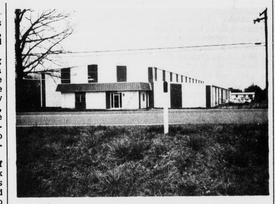
There are about 40 employees now at the new site, carpenters, electricians, plumbers and others with eventual employment of 65 to 70.

Homes are sold on an individual basis or through dealers such as Taylor Matthews, Appomattox and Culpeper, Va.; Brockman Modular Homes, Amherst; other firms in Charlottesville, Bowling Green and Buena Vista, Va.

Fred Lawson is president of Clover Hill Manufacturing Company. R. L. (Dick) Bass is plant manager. Ken Milton is plant supervisor. James Royal is foreman, basic construction; Donald Cooper is foreman of the trim crew. George McDonald is foreman of the component department Edward Moore is the setting crew foreman.

The first Appomattox buyer of a Clover Hill modular home is Herbert Hamlet of Evergreen His home in the Evergreen community is completely bricked, with full basement. Other buyers can make a choice of brick masonite hardboard siding or aluminum siding with several other options as to interior design of two, three or four bedrooms.

Each finished home offers 920 square feet of living space with built-in conveniences plus that added advantage of speed of installation on a lot. The new plant has office and reception room area where buyers will be able to see home designs and if they desire, an on-the-spot look at their new home in the making.



New location of Clover Hill Manufacturing Company is this 200 x 100 ft. building on Rt. 460 west of the town of Appomattox. Clover Hill is a home-building company concentrating on modular homes. Eleven halves or five and one-half houses, altogether, can be assembled inside the new facility, each housebeing complete with heating, appliances, interior and exterior finishes and ready for installation on a homesite. Each half of a house is taken by truck to a homesite and joined to another half, an operation that can be completed in as little as one day. The new company location has advantage of larger building area, more storage room and complete coverage of each component and house-section until it's ready for shipment to buyer.

James Royal, basic construction foreman (back to camera) oversees work on platform that marks beginning of a half-house. Semi-completed half-section of another house is in background in new plant where eleven such halves move on rugged casters toward shipping door at rear of building. Other workers (above) from left, Willy Moseley, Steve Humbles, T. C. Franklin, Alphonso Morgan and Roger Pennell. Clover Hill Mfg. will employ about 60 persons when full production begins in near future. Former location was on Rt. 460 east of the town of Appomattox.

The purpose of this meeting is to appoint a School Trustee At Large for Appomattox County for a term beginning January 1,1972.

The announcement comes from School Trustee Electoral Board chairman Stuart Farrar.

ASCS Continues Information Centers

"As the Nation enters Phase II, ASCS county offices along with the Internal Revenue Service will continue to provide public information at the local level," Mr. Alvis said.

The county ASCS office will receive regular updated information from the President's Cost of Living Council, Price Commission, and Pay Board.

Residents calling or visiting the county office about a wage-price problem, will get answers on the spot if the questions fall within existing guidelines.

More complex questions will be forwarded by county office personnel to the nearest IRS office for a reply.

"We are not authorized to handle complaints, violations and requests for exemption, but we will forward them to the Appomattox County residents can get official information on Phase II of President Nixon's Economic Stabilization Program at the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office, says J. P. Alvis, Jr., Chairman of the Appomattox County ASC Committee. IRS District Headquarters Office," The Chairman explained.

Mr. Alvis also said that the name of anyone filing a complaint or violation will be kept confidential.

Any questions that cannot be answered by ASCS or interpreted by the IRS District Office will be forwarded for higher level action. The person making the inquiry will be informed if this action is taken.

Details on procedures for appealing decisions also are available upon request.

The county ASCS office located at Appomattox, Virginia is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p. m. The telephone number is 352-5283.

Graphs Show Balance Of Population

Population Study Is Completed

The distribution of population within Appomattox County is the subject of a special study just completed by the Central Virginia Planning District Commission.

The Planning Commission, in a cooperative program with Lynchburg College, using college graduate and undergraduate interns during the summer of 1971, has prepared an analysis of each of the census tracts in Appomattox County or roughly, the area encompassed by each of the county's three districts.

In a booklet just distributed, each district is charted by roads, creeks, mountains, etc. and the population of each district translated into a "population pyramid", showing the proportion of male and female residents, white and black and all residents grouped as to age.

For readers unfamiliar with general statistics about the county, Appomattox is situated in the eastern portion of the Central Virginia Planning District. It is bounded on the north by Nelson County, on the east by Buckingham and Prince Edward Counties,, on the south by Charlotte County and on the west by Campbell and Amherst Counties. The county seat is the Town of Appomattox.

The County has 343 square miles or 219,520 acres of land of which 75% is wooded. Because of the vast wooded area timber and wood products are one of the county's main industries. Agriculture is a main industry. The soil is composed mainly of loam type with tobacco being the major crop. Dairy farming and livestock and sawmills are also becoming important. Garment factories in the county produce women's and children's dresses and sportswear.

The population pyramid for the county as a whole and for each of the districts provides a unit of measurement for the labor market.

The county has 9784 people according to the Bureau of Census 1970. Males number 4810; females, 4972. Total white population is 7268 with white males 3550 and white females 3718. Total black population (and other): 2519, with black males numbering 1260 and black females 1255.

The greatest number of persons is found in the 5 to 14 year age bracket, almost 600. Next highest number is the 15 to 24 age bracket, approximately 500. About 250 persons are in the 25 to 34 year age bracket and about that number in the 35 to 44 and approximately 250 45 to 54 year bracket. Smallest number is in the 55 to 64 year old group, about 125 altogether, with a little over 200 persons, total, in the 65 and up group. The under-five age group numbers about 226.

A word description and an individual breakdown of population figures is given for each of the three districts, or in the parlance of census figures, "tracts."

Stonewall District is listed as Tract 0401. This district is bordered on the north by the Nelson County line, on the east by the Buckingham County line, on the south be Routes 24, 606, 647 and U. S. 460 and the Stonewall-Southside Districts lines and contains the communities of Stonewall, Beckham and Oakville.

This tract contains 40,282 acres of which the vast majority is in farm land or vacant. There is some residential development in and around the tracts communities and sparce development along the highways.

Total population of this tract is 2,812 or which 1,602 or 57.1% are white and 1,211 are black and others. The population breakdown by ages reflects a balanced grouping of ages.

Southside District or Tract 0402 encompasses the southwestern corner of Appomattox County and contains the communities of Appomattox, Spout Spring and Evergreen.

This tract contains a total of 28,518 acres of which the vast majority is either in farmland or vacant. There is residential and commercial development in the Town of Appomattox and other communities of the tract.

Tract 0402 has a total population of 4,450 of which 3,629 or 81.5% are white and 822 are black and others. The population breakdown reflects a fairly

'Christmas House'

The Rufus Cawthornes of Pampano Beach, Florida, have an Appomattox home, too, on Road 627, Cloverhill District and for Christmas this year transformed nearly every corner of it into a holiday delight with talking dolls, stuffed animals, homemade candies and treats and a big tree, of course, visible just inside the picture window (above) where Mr. Cawthorne gives a loving pat to a famous reindeer!
